As a self-proclaimed tiny home nerd, I reveled in this opportunity to compile an expansive list of options to share with you. And I have to admit; I now want to try them all!

When looking for an off-grid tiny house, what's not to love about classically rustic style. But instead of a cabin in the woods, it can move from forest to forest as desired.

The Thoreau is a 28-foot tiny house on wheels, named after simple living enthusiast Henry David Thoreau. Creator, Indigo River Tiny Homes built to be entirely off the grid ready with impressive utility systems and efficient appliances.

Nine solar panels are mounted on the roof, while an exterior storage compartment neatly stores the solar power system's four lithium batteries and inverters.

That's enough power to run the entire off grid tiny house for three to four days with no sun!

Another exterior mounted storage shed features two 20-pound propane tanks, a propane tankless water heater, a 50-gallon water tank, and a filtration system. This connects to a 250-gallon rainwater collection barrel.

Living off-the-grid requires a balance of durability and adaptability.

That's where the Thoreau excels. From exterior fire-resistant Sho-Shugi-Ban siding to high-quality finishes, like granite countertops, this tiny home is made to last.

A spacious layout with sleeping areas provides room for a growing family, and space to host a guest. A king-size bed is located in a coveted downstairs bedroom. A simple pop-up mechanism reveals a large storage compartment.

Additionally, there's a crawl in loft with two twin beds. Its ladder doubles as access for the Murphy bed bunk installed above the sofa. I love how it's artfully hidden by Texas flag artwork.

"I went to the woods because I wished to live deliberately, to front only the essential facts of life, and see if I could not learn what it had to teach, and not, when I came to die, discover that I had not lived."
