Cheap shipping container homes

Cheap shipping container homes do not have to be unpleasant to look at and live in. Are you looking for inspiration to build and decorate an affordable tiny home that won't break the bank?

If so, you've come to the right place! Whether a studio, 1-bedroom, or 2-bedroom layout, creativity is key when it comes to planning a tiny home layout made out of shipping containers.

There are many benefits to using a steel container as the main structure of your home. This low-cost home buying alternative is much more sustainable, economical, and flexible. And if you buy prefab modules, the whole process can be so much quicker too.

Containers used: 2 (40 ft containers)

Price: $35,000 (land included)

For just $35,000, Larry Wade had built a 2-bedroom container tiny house out of two 40-foot shipping containers. What's most impressive is that this price includes the land itself, which means the cost of building the home is even cheaper.

Instead of concrete slabs, sliding the containers onto concrete piers can be a more affordable alternative. Then, simply level them both and weld using 2x1/8 inch flat steel bars with a stitch pattern. Welding the floors and doors can also be a great way to add more reinforcement.

Inside, this home features two bedrooms, a large living room, a bathroom, and a kitchen and dining area. The interior adopts a more rustic mountain style, which makes it feel even cozier. There are also solar panels on the roof that can power the water heater and electricity!

Containers used: 2 (20 ft containers)

Unique features: two stories, outdoor patio plus private balcony

It's perfect for a small family residence or even a couple, and the second bedroom can be transformed into a home office instead. Alternatively, this will make for a gorgeous Airbnb house.
