The Illuminating Company is an electric utility service that provides power for over 700,000 customers. It serves the northeast Ohio area along Lake Erie, including cities like Cleveland, Mentor, and Euclid.

This utility's main parent company is FirstEnergy. According to the Better Business Bureau listing, the company was started in 1892 and has been in business since.

Deregulation simply means that customers have the choice in their electric service provider. You search rates through a variety of providers, each offering competitive rates for the market.

It can feel overwhelming trying to figure out which electricity plans might work best for your home. Our guides can help you find plans that might work the best for you, which you can review at the following links.

The Illuminating Company's price to compare is the base rate you pay if you don't switch to another electricity supplier. It's often listed on your electric bill and is the comparison point when shopping for electricity. As an example, The Illuminating Company rates are $.047937/kWh between Oct. 1, 2020, and Dec. 31, 2020. This price can change based on different periods.
